

Ahnya Lewis
Realty Executives, Hedges Real Estate

Personal:

I am a lifelong Lawrence resident and proud fifth-generation Lawrence native. My connection to this community runs deep, and I have always felt a strong sense of responsibility to contribute to the place I call home. I find balance between practicing yoga, coaching youth sports in collaboration with Lawrence Public Schools, and enjoying the country roads and familiar places that make up what I know as home. These experiences have shaped how I think about community and the importance of being an active part of it. That perspective naturally carries into my work in real estate.

Homeownership creates a deeper sense of belonging, stability, and connection, and I see real estate as an opportunity to help people put down roots in the communities they call home. My Lawrence roots and experience as a REALTOR® have given me a unique perspective on both our community's history and the changes shaping its future. I care deeply about the people who live and work here and hope to use my experience, perspective, and voice to help strengthen our REALTOR® community and the profession we represent.

While being an active member of the Lawrence Board of REALTORS® and the National Association of REALTORS®, I have gained valuable experience in committee leadership, collaboration, and member engagement.

My experience as an active REALTOR®, association volunteer, and community volunteer has given me a strong understanding of the opportunities and challenges facing our industry and our local REALTOR® community. I hope to bring a thoughtful, collaborative perspective to leadership and continue contributing to an association that supports, represents, and engages its members.
